

SECTION SPONSOR

 CLICK HERE TO VIEW NEW HOMES

Originally published Saturday, December 16, 2006 at 12:00 AM
 E-mail article Print Share

Home Forum
Homeowner agreed to rules when he bought

A reader writes: "The covenants, conditions and restrictions (governing documents) for my subdivision require that owners of boats, trailers and recreational..."

Elizabeth Rhodes
 Seattle Times staff reporter

Q: The covenants, conditions and restrictions (governing documents) for my subdivision require that owners of boats, trailers and recreational vehicles keep them behind a fence. One homeowner has declined to comply and parks his RV on the street. His rationale is that the street is public, and therefore the association has no jurisdiction. Is he right?

A: He's not, says attorney Michelle Ein with the Seattle law office of James Strichartz.

A plat map of your lot and street "will likely show that each lot owner actually owns to the center of the street, and what was dedicated by the developer was an easement to the public for the purposes of using the street," Ein said.

If that's the case, the street is considered property within the association, and the association can impose restrictions on how homeowners use it.

"But there's a better argument here than that," Ein continued. "People who buy in [a neighborhood with] a homeowners' association are buying subject to the covenants, which they agree to abide by.

"So what you're doing when you're imposing a rule — such as not parking RVs on the street — is regulating the actions of the owner. You're not regulating the street."

As long as a rule is enforced uniformly and in good faith, your association is within its rights to insist that homeowners follow it.

Q: We hired a contractor to do a bathroom remodel. He finished about 90 percent of it and then stopped. We told him we'd pay the balance of his bill when he finished. His response was that he'd report it as a bad debt, which could damage our credit rating, if we didn't pay immediately. We didn't have a contract that said what work was involved. What should we do now?

A: Because you lack a written contract, you have no choice but to pay him now, says Kirkland attorney Jeanette Bowers Weaver.

Here's why: The law says a contractor is entitled to full payment upon substantial — not actual — completion, and you can't withhold final payment until all work is finished unless you have a contract that allows this.

"The law does not define substantial completion precisely," Bowers Weaver said. "Lawyers and the courts guesstimate that it's somewhere in the 90 to 100 percent range, but there's no case which says precisely what percentage."

In the future, you can avoid such situations by insisting on a written contract. It should detail the full scope of the project, the timeline for completion, the payment schedule and what happens if these conditions are not met.

Video

More videos

ADVERTISING

THE BURNSTEADS

Experience the Legacy of The Burnsteads
 HOMES STARTING AT $464,950 TO OVER 1.5 MILLION

Three Northwest Home Builders
 ...One Heritage

10 NEW HOME COMMUNITIES
 CLICK HERE TO VIEW NEW HOMES

John C. Scott REAL ESTATE www.burnstead.com

AP Video

Thumbnail Image Not Available Thumbnail Image Not Available

Jury Deliberates in Macneil Trial Obama: Let's Stop Washington... Lawyer Says Toronto Mayor 'Considering'

Entertainment | Top Video | World | Offbeat Video | Sci-Tech

Marketplace

Homes & Rentals Autos Jobs

Find a Home
 For sale New Homes

Search properties for sale Rent a home or apartment Post your property or rental

Open Houses Find all open houses. search now

GET SERIOUS™
 about Your Business

15% OFF Get Started use code GET15OFF

ADVERTISING

EARN 30,000 BONUS MILES
 WITH THE GOLD DELTA SKYMILES™ CREDIT CARD FROM AMERICAN EXPRESS.

APPLY NOW >

The contract also should include a hold-back provision that requires final payment only upon satisfactory completion. That's your insurance against ending up in the same uncomfortable position again.

Q: A fire destroyed my Florida timeshare unit two years ago. It hasn't been rebuilt because of insurance problems. I can't sell it, and I can't even exchange my week there for a stay in another timeshare resort because I have nothing to exchange. Yet I still have to pay the assessments. Who can I call to get help with this situation?

A: Knowing where to turn for help can be a dilemma for timeshare owners who, like you, live in a state other than the one where their vacation resort is located. So here's some advice from Stephany Madsen, senior vice president of the American Resort Development Association, a timeshare trade association:

If you've been unsuccessful in resolving your problem with the resort's management, "go to the state regulatory agency where that resort is located, regardless of where you live," Madsen said.

You'll find a list of U.S. and Canadian agencies, as well as addresses and links to their Web sites, at www.arello.org. That's the Web site of the Association of Real Estate License Law Officials.

If Florida regulatory officials can't help you, it's time to consult a Florida real-estate attorney.

Home Forum answers readers' real-estate questions. Send questions to Home Forum, Seattle Times, P.O. Box 1845, Seattle, WA 98111, or call 206-464-8510 to leave a question on a recorded line. The e-mail address is erhodes@seattletimes.com. Sorry, no personal replies. More columns at www.seattletimes.com/columnists.

E-mail article Print Share

More from our network

Statewide prep football scores From The Seattle Times

Seattle U men's basketball expecting immediate impact from its transfers From The Seattle Times

What are the best jobs in Seattle for 2014? Check out the Top 10 From NWjobs - Career Center

After imperfection, Seahawks' Russell Wilson produces a perfect response From The Seattle Times

Editorial: Media consolidation decimates KOMO 4 From The Seattle Times

More from the Web
 Selected for you by a Sponsor

Beef Stroganoff From Omaha Steaks Recipes

Here Are the 5 Top Luxury SUVs of 2013 From Mainstreet

The NFL's most-disliked players From Washington Post

Tour Bill Gates' New Florida Home From HGTV FrontDoor

Top Housing Expert Forecasts Huge Appreciation in Housing Market From Merrill Lynch: Wealth Management

Does Peeing In The Shower Cure Athlete's Foot? From upwave

More Real Estate

NEW - 10:00 PM
Reverse mortgages get more affordable, but be careful

UPDATE - 10:00 PM
Nation's Housing: Too much of a good deal?

UPDATE - 7:52 PM
Guardian to represent ailing Mastro in bankruptcy case House members spar over efforts to avert foreclosures

NEW - 10:00 PM
Spring-cleaning tips for the garage

More Real Estate headlines...

Ads by Google

Rent to Own Home Listings
 Rent to Own Home Listings For $1. Search Nationwide & Local Listings. www.GetRentToOwn.com/Rent-to-Own

Comcast® - Movers Offer
 Get XFINITY in Your New Home - TV, Internet & More for One Low Price! Comcast.com/Move

Property Management
 Taking care of residential real estate since 1950. www.ChatelRealEstate.com

 Get home delivery today!

ADVERTISING

GET SERIOUS™
 about Your Business

15% OFF Get Started use code GET15OFF

network solutions®

Site map

Search

Our network sites seattletimes.com | Advanced

The Seattle Times Company
 About the company
 Employment opportunities
 Seattle Times store
 Advertise with us
 Newspapers in Education

Services
 Your account / Log in E-mail newsletters
 Contact us
 Feedback and questions
 Submit listings
 Send us news tips
 Historical archive

News
 Home Local Nation/World
 Business/Tech
 Entertainment Living
 Travel
 Sports
 Opinion
 Extras
 Today's news index

Marketplace
 Jobs
 Autos
 Homes
 Rentals
 Classifieds
 Shopping
 Personals
 Post an ad

Subscriber Services
 Subscription
 e-Edition
 Pay for your subscription
 Subscriber rewards
 Temporary stops

Other editions
 News by e-mail
 Mobile
 RSS feeds
 e-Edition
 Low-graphic
 Twitter
 Social media